1. The following carloads of munitions were turned over to the Chinese Communists by the Soviet authorities:

25 September 1946

17 train carloads

17 December 1946

12 train carloads

6 January 1947

14 train carloads

The bulk of the munitions in these cars were Japanese Model 38 rifles. There were also forty "knee mortars", ninety-one light machine guns, 265 heavy machine guns, and twenty small artillery pieces. Locomotives and electric generators were also turned over to the Chinese Communists by the Soviets.

2. Between November 1946 and May 1947 an estimated 55,000 tons of foodstuffs were shipped to the USSR via Manchouli (117-27, 49-36). The largest shipments were made in November, December and January, when an average of six trains of twenty cars each passed over the USSR border at Manchouli daily. Each car carried an average of thirty tons of foodstuffs, consisting mainly of flour, soybeans and wheat. Kaoliang, corn, millet, bean oil, meat and other foodstuffs were included in the later shipments.
